Throughout the programme your career ambitions will shape your learning. Topics learned will cover broad areas such as strategy, finance, accounting, risk management, marketing, and organisational behaviour, and a range of electives allow you to tailor your learning to fit your desired career outcomes.

The MSc Management has been designed to offer a multidisciplinary approach to management, preparing you to take leadership roles, to bring innovation to organisations, and to manage complex problems in highly competitive business environments.
WHAT MAKES US UNIQUE

Analytics, entrepreneurship, innovation, and technology are at the core of our approach to management, helping you to understand the past, to manage the present, and to create the future.

The MSc Management gives you a degree of freedom in choosing your specialisation through taught modules and an individual research project, which allows you to really focus in on a particular discipline, or even to prepare a business plan for your next enterprise.

We believe that while the theoretical knowledge we provide gives you a solid understanding of management, completing your own business research and practicing your knowledge and skills is the only way to truly embrace and understand how to implement your learnings.

This is a core feature across all modules we teach, enabling you to become critical thinkers capable of creating new solutions to organisational challenges.
LEADERSHIP
In order to achieve that, we are preparing young professionals for managing business complexity and innovation. We will arm you with the skills and knowledge to become a critical thinker who accepts the challenge of creating solutions for old and new problems, and to become a professional who has the passion and drive to bring innovation and change to companies, consultancies, and financial institutions of all sizes across the globe.

We do this by:
- Delivering a comprehensive curriculum in management, which is continuously updated to reflect industry trends and technological advances.
- Teaching you a multidisciplinary approach for managing business complexity.
- Offering research-oriented teaching, which helps you to develop skills for solving new problems and bringing innovation.
- Sharing our contemporary vision of current and future problems, informed by theory, research and updated information on the industry.
- Encouraging you to take up opportunities to engage with industry professionals and potential employers.

MSc Management students are to be leaders in their industries, and are to lead the way as the future of business changes before our eyes.
INNOVATION
The School of Management Careers Team provides bespoke and exclusive careers support during your time at UCL, and as you climb the ladder throughout your career.

Our Careers Consultants give you the skills to impress potential employers by providing careers coaching and guidance via one-to-ones and group workshops. In addition, our Employer Engagement Team facilitates connections with employers both in the UK and globally via bespoke employer event programmes.

This is an essential complement to our academic programmes, enabling us to best prepare you for your future careers, and support you to identify and achieve your goals.

Facts and figures
- The median graduate salary for this programme is £30,000
- 100% of recent graduates were either employed or engaged in further studies within six months.

Example companies our graduates earn jobs with include
- Cisco Systems
- PwC
- Credit Suisse
- Deloitte
- IBM
- KPMG
- Accenture
- Deutsche Bank
- EY
- J.P. Morgan
SPECIALIST
Teaching on the MSc Management programme takes place across both the School of Management’s home in Canary Wharf, and the UCL Bloomsbury campus. On Level 38 and Level 50 of the iconic One Canada Square building in Canary Wharf, the UK’s leading Business and Finance hub, the School has a dedicated facility for postgraduate students with three state-of-the-art lecture theatres, two seminar suites, multiple breakout and teaching rooms, and two student hubs, all of which have stunning views across the city of London.

Bloomsbury is home to the main UCL campus, where you will be able to immerse yourself in more than 150 years of history, alongside access to fantastic teaching spaces, as well as gyms, cafés, the library, plus the student’s union and associated societies.

Our prime London location gives you access to the best the city has to offer in entertainment and nightlife, as well as access to world-renowned museums and art galleries, some of the city’s best green spaces, and most importantly, world-leading businesses.
OUR CAMPUSES

[Images of campus environments and student activities]
UCL School of Management (UCL SoM) offers innovative undergraduate, postgraduate, and doctoral programmes to prepare students for leadership roles in the next generation of innovation-intensive organisations.

The School works closely with leading global companies and high-growth businesses at the cutting edge of management practice.

www.mgmt.ucl.ac.uk